Prominent Westmoreland Attorney Passed Away

Denna C. Ogden, solicitor of Westmoreland county, and one of the most widely known and successful attorneys in this section, died at the Westmoreland hospital, Greensburg, yesterday afternoon at 1:55 o'clock, after an illness of only a few days.

Last Monday, Mr. Ogden was taken critically ill and was removed to the Westmoreland hospital, where a consultation of physicians was held. Temporary relief was given and the condition of the patient seemed to improve for a time, but Thursday, a change for the worse took place and an abdominal operation was decided upon and performed. Immediately it was announced there was no hope of recovery and the patient lingered until the noon hour yesterday when death came.

Denna C. Ogden

Mr. Ogden was 55 years of age and was one of the most successful attorneys at the Westmoreland county bar. He started the practice of law early in life and his career closes with the esteem and respect of thousands of clients throughout the county and the state of Pennsylvania. He was also an aggressive politician, and at the time of his death, he was one of the leaders of the Republican party in county and state politics, and while he was an untiring worker for the success of his party, he never held an elective office at the hands of the Republican party. More than twenty years ago he served as district attorney in the Democratic party, leaving that party shortly after his term of service.

In his law practice as well as in his business and political life, Mr. Ogden was active, determined and aggressive. His friends loved and admired him, his clients had faith in his ability to win and his political associates sought his generalship. He was an untiring worker throughout his life and the close of his career places him as one of the most brilliant men in the profession. His widow survives.

Convention

The semi-annual S. S. convention of the 12th district of Westmoreland county will be held in the Presbyterian church, Delmont, September 10, and the following program will be carried out:

Devotiontl services by Rev. H. E. Kaufman of Congruity, at 2:15, 2:30 Sunday school enrollment and daily attendance by Jas. Hutson, New Alexandria; 3:30, Importance of Attending the county convention, Rev. L. C. Denise, New Kensington; 3:15, How to secure the attendance of the boys at Sunday school, Wat Hart, New Alexandria; 3:30. How to Teach Young Men, A. L. Nedley, Delmont; 4:00 The Young Ladies Bible class, Rev. Wallace, New Alexandria. Evening sessions begin at 7:30; 7.45 devotional services, Rev. C. K. Spiegle, Delmont; 8:00 Boys' Conference, L. Gordon Ciark, New Alexandria; 9:00 temperance address, Rev. J. L. Updegraph, Mt. Pleasant.

—Rev. H. O. MacDonald of the Presbyterian church, has returned from his vacation at Carmichaels and will occupy his pulpit both morning and evening.

—Herbert Shambaugh and little daughter have returned from a months vacation at Atlantic City and Snyder county. They made the trip in Mr. Shambaugh's new touring car and were accompanied home by Miss Mary Dreese of Selins Grove, who will visit here for some time.

Maxwell Entered Auto Race

Everything is in readiness for the big auto race meet to be held Labor day at the Belle Vernon track. This meet is unquestionably the most pretentious affair ever staged in western Pennsylvania and plans have been made to take care of a crowd of 10,000. Special car service will be in force throughout the day between all connecting river towns and the race track. Seven big events are on the card and ten fast drivers of national fame have entered cars known to be the speediest in the country.

Fife's Maxwell of Pittsburgh is the latest car to be entered. Fife came to Charleroi and entered his racer which he will drive himself. This makes four entries from Pittsburgh, Fetterman with his Simplex, Rose with his Mercedes, Fife with his Maxwell and Hasley with his Mitchell Bill.

Spencer's garage which is the headquarters for the racing cars, is one of the most popular places in Charleroi these days. Every day for the past week hundreds of persons paid a visit to look over the powerful racers and observe the repairs being made to the two cars wrecked last week on the Belle Vernon track. Both Fetterman's Simplex and Gardner's Beaver Bullet, the two cars that went through the fence have been fully repaired, and the drivers have been working them on the track yesterday and today.

The feature of the program will be the 20-mile free-for-all which is the last event on the card. At least eight cars will start in this race. Some heavy bets, it is said, have been placed and the keen rivalry among several of the drivers will develop some fast driving. New records will undoubtedly be established on the Belle Vernon track if the racers can hold to the course. As one of the drivers put it either former records or more fence will be shattered before the day is over, and from the daring already displayed by Gardner, Fetterman, Johnson and several others, this can be taken as pretty near the truth.

True Bill In Local Arson Case

Quite a number of Monessen people were called to Greensburg in the local arson case. Peter Lukarias was charged with setting fire to the furniture in his home on Park Way the night of April 20. After careful investigation of the case, the Deputy Fire Marshall brought charges and he was held for court at a hearing several weeks ago before Justice of the Peace A. N. Shuster.

He was taken to Greensburg and secured bail. The hearing was set for yesterday and numerous witnesses were in attendance at court. The case was given to the grand jury and a true bill found against the accused. The case was called for yesterday but by special agreement was postponed until Wednesday of next week. The "blind tiger" cases from this city were also postponed until Thursday of next week.

Board Of Health Must Examine Eating Houses

Commissioner of Health Samuel G. Dixon today sent word to boards of health in cities, boroughs and townships to commence enforcement of the act of 1915 for medical inspection of employes of hotels, restaurants, dining cars and public eating places of all kinds. Local health officers are required to make an inspection at least once a month. The law also requires proper cleansing of all dishes and eating and drinking utensils and prohibits the use of public towels or common drinking cups.

The local board of health will on receipt of this notice, begin an inspection of all restaurants and hotels and employes of these various places will be required to secure a physician's certificate, showing them to be in the best of health. Inspections will be made every month and a strict enforcement of the law secured in this city.

K. of M. Picnic

Everything is in readiness for the Union picnic of the Knights of Malta of the upper valley, which will be held at Oakland park out on the Charleroi-Ellsworth street car line. J. D. Nicolay, E. C. Baker and Gus Kruell are members of the local committee in charge of the affair and report that one of the largest crowds of the season is expected at the new park on Monday and a big list of sports will occupy the afternoon program. The base bell game between the Charleroi and Monessen lodges and the Donora and Monongahela lodges will be one of the features of the day.

All those who expect to attend from this city are requested to leave on the half hour cars to make prompt connectionst in Charleroi.

Lessons of the Boycott

Everybody throughout the length and breadth of the land is more or less acquainted with the famous Danbury hatters case where the labor organization during a strike instituted a boycott against D E. Lowe and Son, famous hatters. While the employes lost in their contention, the boycott was far reaching and the firm brought suit against the labor organization to recover damages with the result that the plaintiff won the suit and the court soaked the labor organization the sum of $260,000, costs and all. After twelve years' litigation, it becomes necessary to sell the homes of men and women who were members of the organization when the boycott was instituted. This is where the disgrace of the whole thing comes in. It is wrong for the innocent to suffer and many of the homes of aged people and widows must be sold to liquidate the obligation when as a matter of fact they were not in sympathy with the strike and had no hand whatever in the wrong done. But the United Hatters Association was affiliated with the American Federation of labor and it was supposed to be in every way responsible for any act of violence committed and the Supreme courts have held that the homes and the possessions of its members are financially responsible for the acts of the organization.

While it is un-American and morally and legally wrong to institute a boycott, it does seem little less than a crime for these innocent people to lose all they have in the world on account of misguided leadership Yet the way to conquer a bulldog is to look him square in the eye. The boycott should never be instituted as a means to accomplish an end. We have had it in labor contentions, we have had it on moral questions, and we have had it on religious questions and it never wins a point, but it does redound to the discredit of those who use it as a weapon and as in the Danbury case it will ever return as a ghost that will not down.

Church societies and combinations have used the boycott to settle the great liquor question. We have had it in Monessen. A short time ago an organization tried to drive business out of a man's place because he signed liquor petitions. They refused the man the constitutional right to think and act as he pleases so long as he did not violate the law. If he signed liquor petitions, the church people were to boycott him and if he refused to sign, the liquor people might decline to trade with him. So this man was forced by an alleged boycott to sacrifice his principles and his business and it was all done in the name of Christianity. What was the result? Why the cause suffered as it will in every instance. Men will not be driven past their convictions. This is a day of thought and reason and unless you can reason and arbitrate a contention there will be no correct solution. It is a violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust law to institute a boycott on any individual or business, and when the homes of these people are sold to pay for this violation, this lesson should go forth as a final teaching that if a contention cannot be won on its merits, there is no alternative within the bounds of justice.

Want an Open Primary

The Greensburg Tribune editor made the mistake that led to his undoing when he refused to keep still about the irregularities in the Commissioner's office after he had been called by the Grand Jury as a leading witness to sustain the charges or assertions he had so often made through his paper. When asked what he knew about the criminal conduct of the commissioners, he failed to give any evidence that would lead to the conviction of the evil doers and the case was dismissed. But the Tribune refused to shut up. It started in to abuse the court and kept up its vigilant tirade against W. Dick Reamer until Mr. Reamer was forced to make a reply in order to clear his character. He issued a circular with an answer to all of the allegations made, and that circular has gone to the four corners of Westmoreland county and has been read by nine tenths of all of the voters with the result that Reamer is vindicated in so far as public sentiment is concerned.

But what will be the ultimate outcome? Reamer is a candidate for reelection on the Republican ticket. The Tribune has denounced him as an unfit person to hold public office The Tribune claims to be a staunch Republican organ, but if Reamer is nominated, it must either crawfish or remove the Republican ticket as nominated from its editorial masthead. This is indeed a pretty predicament for a paper. Few party newspapers make a slate in a primary election. They leave the nomination of candidates to the voters and accept the majority rule. The Tribune cannot do this, for some of the most conspicuous candidates in the Republican campaign have been victims of the Tribune's tirades. After this nomination, the Republican press will demand of the Republican party the rewards the Tribune so richly deserves. Every other Republican paper in the county will be able to support the ticket whether Reamer is nominated or not, and that's the way it should be The primaries should be left in the care and keeping of the voters. After they are all over, the Republican press should unite with a solid front against the opposing party and should be able to give the candidates chosen by the people a recommendation of character, worth and fitness. Reamer has been a Republican official for a long time, but the Tribune never found out any of his shortcomings until he refused to give that paper a steady job of printing the mercantile appraisers' list. What the Independent is contending for is a square deal for every candidate seeking the nomination, and true to our principles, we shall approve the ticket as the voters hand it to us by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

The BROKEN COIN by EMERSON HOUGH

From the Scenario by GRACE CUNARD

COPYRIGHT, 1915, BY WRIGHT A. PATTERSON

Novelized From the Motion Picture Drama of the Same Name. Produced by the Universal Film Manufacturing Company.

"I do not run," said Count Frederick, slowly. "If there is such a charge as this, certainly we shall meet it, for it is our purpose as well as theirs to find who are guilty

"Come now," he turned to Kitty as he drew the key of the lock from his pocket, "you have once more, by virtue of this exigency, mademoiselle, conquered me! I must set you free for a time Fate seems to fight with you. Later we will resume our argument, but now I think what Roleau says has justice in it We must not be found here thus"

He flung open the iron grille. Kitty sprang down the steps, clung to the arm of Roleau. A flush came to Count Frederick's face as he saw how she avoided himself There was, however, no time for further speech. The sound of rapid footfalls came down the hall. The captain of gendarmes and his men were at the door

"Messieurs, welcome!" said Count Frederick. "But why are you here?"

"Monsieur le comte, we ask pardon for the intrusion, but we must ask you to join us," replied the officer. He was impressed by the calm dignity of Count Frederick, as had been more than one man before his time.

"For what reason do you desire our company, monsieur captain? Is there any charge against us?"

"There is a charge of great severity to be laid against someone, monsieur le comte. We ask your aid to determine who that one may be This young woman, who is she?"

"I am Miss Kitty Gray of America," visions to no more than a couple of men beside himself, hesitated, and turned to secure the safety of his more important captives While they paused they heard the quick wheels of a taxicab which drew up before them After all, it was an open question what had been Roleau's intent, for certainly he had ordered this vehicle to come hither. Making the best of the matter, the captain of gendarmes motioned for his prisoners to enter the car.

Kitty turned to the silent man who sat at her side. Count Frederick laid a finger to his lips, counseling silence, and gazed straight on ahead

Thus, silent and aloof, they arrived as prisoners at the grand entrance of the Hotel Ritz

Kitty found herself face to face with a large man in full uniform, a man with a heavy beard and merciless eye, who now addressed himself to his subordinate:

"As to this man," he demanded, "why have you taken Count Frederick of Gretzhoffen?"

"Merely as ultimate suspicion," stammered the captain "We found him in company with this young woman, in whose room the crime was committed. This other—" he pointed to Count Sachio, "also seems to have known this young woman"

"Who are you, then?" demanded the prefect of Count Sachio.

"I am Count Sachio of Grahaffen," replied the latter, none too happy at the situation in which he found himself.

Frederick. Roleau and Kitty, Arrested for Murder.

answered the object of his suspicion. "This is my servant, Roleau Who are you?"

"We are of the imperial police, mademoiselle. A murder has been done in your room at the Ritz hotel. Naturally someone is under suspicion. Let me caution both you and Count Frederick not to speak What you say may be used as evidence"

Count Frederick turned suddenly toward Kitty, a warning in his eyes. She stood, therefore, silent, looking at the man.

"Mademoiselle is in no case responsible for any of this," said he to the officer. "We will all go with you and conclude this matter as quickly as possible We must be released at once from detention"

The officer turned beckoning to them to follow him.

The little group passed along the walk to the open curb of the street. It was Roleau who hesitated here, addressing the captain of gendarmes.

"Monsieur captain," said he, "I see that you guard all the escapes possible to any guilty man. You will therefore allow me to step to the corner to summon a carriage for these two excellencies?"

The captain of gendarmes hesitated for a half instant, frowned, and then nodded.

"Naturally, you only do your duty, monsieur captain," suggested Roleau, "but excellencies like these must not walk. Excuse me, then?"

Those who lingered for an instant saw Roleau walk leisurely toward the corner, raise his hand as though in a signal, and then break into a run.

"Wait," exclaimed Count Frederick, as he saw the plan of the quick-witted servant. "If you leave us we also might run away. We will pick him up, no doubt. Do you tarry here with us."

In fact the captain of gendarmes, seeing his own party reduced by division to no more than a couple of men, hesitated, and then turned to the prefect of police.

"Might I suggest to monsieur le prefect that we hasten," interrupted Count Frederick gently enough

The prefect had seen many women, not all of them innocent. He smiled grimly enough now as he noticed the beauty of the young girl, who stood pale and not wholly collected in all this turmoil The girl now turned to him, and for the first time spoke

"Monsieur le prefect," said she, "you cannot make guilt out of innocence. I can prove to you by this clerk and all these others that I was absent from the hotel for several days. When I came back it was but for a short time. I was absent when this crime was discovered How can you connect me with it? Rather connect with it those who have had access to my room during my absence"

The official turned toward her thoughtfully, then to the captain of gendarmes. "Have you searched all these persons?" he inquired. The latter shook his head.

"So you do not know what evidence has been destroyed Come, then, perform that duty now, see what you find upon the persons of these individuals. The woman first."

Without hesitation Kitty presented her handbag, drew out from it her little portemonnaie, even turned inside out the pocket of her frock. Count Frederick watched her closely as she did so. He saw that none of the officers discovered the piece of coin. He suspected, although he did not know, that Kitty had palmed it under her thumb as she spread out her hands, asking them to certify themselves.

The gendarmes, their captain, the prefect of police, turned away nonplussed The prefect hesitated as he faced the calm dignity of the nobleman.

"Your excellency," said he at length, "I dislike to ask of you the right of search. I comply only with formalities. If your excellency—"

"Certainly," said Count Frederick, and threw open his coat.

The prefect of police turned to his men. "We have not yet found all of those parties who may be concerned with this crime. We have not yet held our questions on the scene of the crime itself

They turned, all of them, now, and approached the stairway which led to the floor upon which were located Kitty's apartments Their numbers quite filled the hall as they advanced, preceded and followed by gendarmes But suddenly, as they approached the spot they sought, the captain of gendarmes touched the arm of his superior and pointed ahead.

"That is the man who escaped," exclaimed he. "Roleau, here he is, and coming from the room itself! But who is that with him?"

CHAPTER XXXVI.

The Body of the Crime.

It had been easy for Roleau, once he was free of the immediate presence of the officers, to spring into the nearest alleyway and quickly pass from sight While the officer, in charge of his more distinguished prisoners, was passing in the car toward the front entrance of the Hotel Ritz, Roleau himself was speeding thither almost as quickly through devious passageways which led to the rear of the hotel

Attaining entrance at the rear, he sped up the back stairs, and found himself once more at the apartments of Kitty Gray

What he saw caused even his stout nerves to quail for the time On the floor before him, with face half turned and arms outflung, lay the victim of the last adventure connected with the mysterious Gretzhoffen coin

Roleau did not know this man at first, but he seemed not of Gretzhoffen. Rather his garb betokened him to come from the kindred kingdom of Grahaffen

Carefully, yet using that speed which he knew was imperative, Roleau bent over, making such search as he could of the silent evidence of the crime It seemed to him almost certain that he had seen this man somewhere, but he could not be sure He stooped, hesitated, and then swiftly sprang aside and sought concealment behind the hangings of the room He was sure that he had heard someone move in the rear room of the apartments.

He had no more than concealed himself before he had full evidence of the justice of his suspicion He heard a rustling behind the curtained door, heard the slight shuffling of a step, and saw emerge from the concealing curtains a face which he knew well enough; he could not mistake that cunning, rathike chin, the shifting eyes, the almost silent footfall which carried him forward Yes, Roleau knew him, knew him well enough He had met him not so long before in combat at the lodge of Count Sachio, had saved the life of her excellency from this very man He had fought him again in his own den in the slums of Gretzhoffen here Yes, it was Drake, the renegade king of the apaches

He stooped over the body and knelt by its side, thrust a hand into the pockets of the coat, and at length drew out a folded paper, which he hurriedly crowded into his own pocket. Then he was about to arise but at that instant he felt the tigerlike weight of the giant Roleau upon his own back A hand caught his arm back of his, crowded it up toward the back of his neck, strained it into a position of excruciating pain An arm came around his neck, closing him He was helpless

"Get up," said Roleau, at length, grimly. "I know you. So, you did this? Come along with me"

Now it was this strange apparition of Roleau marching his prisoner before him which gave pause to the procession of the law as it advanced toward the scene of the crime The prefect of the city, his officers, Count Frederick, Count Sachio, Kitty Gray, all these others, paused now

"What is this?" demanded the prefect imperatively Who are you, and what do you do with this man?"

"He is the guilty man, excellency," said Roleau rightly "I took him but just now in our apartments He was bending over the dead man there when I saw him I sprang upon him and took him, as you see. I know this man well enough He is a robber and a chief of robbers; he is the leader of the apaches of this city."

"What you say may be true," said the prefect, as he cast a swift glance at the prisoner; "but we can jump at no conclusions. Retain him, retain them both."

"Do you know this man?" he demanded of the clerk.

But the latter shook his head "I never saw him," said he "But all these things rouse additional suspicion of this young woman She is too mysterious; she has too many strange friends I tell you, monsieur le prefect, she is the one who knows all about this! She knows the victim, whoever he may have been. Depend on that"

The prefect, had he made like question of Count Frederick or of Kitty herself, might have heard that they both had seen before now this latest addition to the list of captives But that official, for the time, was engaged in larger matters

"There is truth in what you say," he assented to the last remark of the clerk "Now all the avenues are closed and all the suspects are assembled, I take it We will see what the room itself holds We will enter"

"No, no," cried Kitty, in sudden terror at the thought of what she feared to see "I cannot I know nothing of this; I don't know who the man was I don't know who did this"

"What, mademoiselle! You fear to see what there may be to witness?" said the prefect "As to you, monsieur le comte—"

"The law will take its course," said Count Frederick coldly "You have before now seen fit to doubt me Take matters into your own hands, monsieur le prefect, and let the law go on."

The prefect himself flung open the door and entered the mysterious room.

The room, so far as any victim of a crime was concerned, was entirely empty. Everything was in order as before There was no dead man there!

A Resident Known to all our Readers Relates an Experience

Readers of the Independent have been told again and again of the merits of that reliable, time-proven kidney remedy—Doan's Kidney Pills. The experiences told are not those of unknown persons, living far away. The cases are Monessen cases, told by Monessen people.

Mrs. R. Gilmore, 102½ First street, Monessen, says: "I suffered for years from a lame back and often when I stooped, the misery was so intense that I cried aloud. If I moved suddenly, it seemed as if something snapped in my back. When I exerted myself in sweeping or doing housework, the pain was unbearable. I felt tired and listless all the time and my head ached. My eyes were affected and I was all worn out. I consulted several doctors, but none of them seemed to do me any good, and finally I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills. A few boxes made me quite well. Others of the family used Doan's Kidney Pills as a kidney tonic and think highly of them."

A Strong Candidate for County Treasurer

WILLIAM H. ROSE

William H. Rose, of Greensburg, is a candidate for County Treasurer. He is a son of the late C. J. Rose. He was born and reared on a farm in East Huntingdon Township. Going to Greensburg about 16 years ago when his father moved to the county seat.

He was formerly engaged in the real estate and insurance business there and for the past six years has been in the automobile business. The Rose family is one of the oldest and best known families in the Southern part of the county. They have been staunch supporters of the Republican party ever since the party has existed, and none of its members has ever held or asked for county office.

Mr. Rose appreciates the importance of the office, the time and attention it requires, and if elected, he pledges his most earnest and continued efforts to discharge its duties faithfully.

Peoples Forum

This column is devoted to the expression of the opinion of our readers and in no wise denotes the paper's opinion on or sympathy with any question involved.

IS IT RIGHT?

Suppose the officers of your lodge stayed away from the meeting say for about one month. What would happen. Why you would get up in righteous wrath and prefer charges against them for violation of their obligation and raise cain generally.

You can stay away year in and year out and never do anything for the good of the order; you pay your dues sometimes with a grumble at the cost and apparently with no thought of doing good to others outside of your own household; enjoy all privileges and reap all the benfits of belonging to an association of women banded together for the common welfare with no effort or attempt on your part to assist in the work. Now ask yourself the question is it right or honorable that you should enjoy all privileges and blessings which accompany membership without you giving quid proqus?

Suppose you had a partner who persistently neglected business, yet who invariably insisted on an equal division of the profits? What would you think about it? Would you think it equitable and just? Would you not rather believe that you were being imposed upon? Well, that is your position exactly, you are a partner in an association obliged to assist each other in sickness and distress; to help each other in adversity, to raise the standard and better the condition of humanity generally and when death removes one of their number to provide for the future welfare of those whom he may leave behind, not merely with financial aid, but with kindly deeds and words of advice.

Each member of the order has taken an obligation to the above effect, you among the number, and if your conscience says that you are observing that obligation, you are a true member and if not, ask yourself the question "Is it right?"

A Sister.

Do You KnOw Why Russia is Always Defeated by the Germans
It is because the Russians never have the correct time. Don,t follow their example but buy a new watch or have the old one repaired by I. Mayer, the Jeweler, and be sure you have the correct time.
I. MAYER, New Location,
607 Schoonmaker Avenue. Look for the sign and number.
